Language Truck Educational Services & East Bay Academy for Young Scientists (EBAYS) present:

Sonoma County Youth Science & Leadership Academy

The Sonoma County Youth Science and Leadership Academy provides hands-on learning experiences in leadership, communication skills, team building, and scientific research. Students will experiment with renewable energy, temperature, technology, and other important environmental topics designed to develop their skills as scientists, leaders, and community members. The program integrates self-discovery, field experimentation using specialized equipment, and the practice of creative and critical thinking via a research-based approach to science and social change. Students will be encouraged to contribute their thoughts and ideas on personal as well as community decision-making as they interact with each other and guest speakers including local environmental leaders, scientists, and educators. Students may gain junior/senior project experience and hours, community service hours, and/or Santa Rosa Junior College independent study units.
